With Ferrin Cox

An FBI agent in California has been charged with either selling or trying t sell secrets to the Soviet Union. The agent, Richard W. Miller of Los Angeles, is probably the first FBI agent to ever be charged with such activity. We read a comment one day this week that ol' J. Edgar Hoover was probably turning over in his grave at the thought of a member of his pride and joy being charged in such a case. Hooyer had a lot of faults, but he did run a tight ship, and if there was any shred of evidence of wrongdoing, he cleared up the matter one way or another.

Enterprise voters will vote on a wet-dry issue next month - or more correctly a legal/illegal issue. We hesitate to venture into something that ain't a bit of our business, but we do have an opinion. Our assumption over the last couple of years was that such a vote would pass in Enterprise; however, we have changed that opinion in the last couple of months and now predict it will not pass . . . either way it will be close. Our reasons for this opinion are the cross section of real good people who have openly opposed the issue. There is none of the usual lining up of political groups on each side, as the opponents come from all political factions. Also, many of those opposing the legal sale of alcohol in Enterprise set an example by living the life they advocate for Coffee County and are not the oft-cursed drink wet/vote dry citizen scorned by proponents of legal sales.

Remember too, that if it passes in Enterprise, the matter can be legally voted on in Elba soon thereafter!

The city council article on the front page notes that the hospital authority has paid the oft-mentioned $50,000 to the city. It is probably fitting at this time to re-hash the source of that money. The hospital was leased to National Healthcare for five years with an option to renew. The lease payment goes first to repay a 25-year loan from Farmer's Home Administration. Also some reserves must be funded from this payment. The balance can be given entirely to the city government or kept entirely by the Authority, which is an arm of the city. However, at the time the lease was being worked out, there was a gentlemen's agreement between elected city officials and the nted board members, and the understanding was that this $50,000 would be an annual payment, as long as it didn't cause a default in the bond payment. Also, board members expressed a concern to be prepared to pay National Healthcare for their inventory and capital improvements if at any time the lease was canceled or not renewed. The Farmer's Home loan was made to the city because it is a city-owned hospital; however, the various eases and leasebacks that took place prior to the lease by National Healthcare took several lawyers and volumes of paperwork to complete. The bottom line is that the payment for the last fiscal year has been paid and Security. everyone is happy. P.S. While members of the hospital authority are appointed by the council to staggererd terms, a vote by the city council some disabled or elderly people who room and board. time last fall extended terms of all members for another five years.

We didn't get real excited about the presidential debate this week and only watched the last part. However, as we had predicted, both sides claimed victory, but we haven't found a single voter who had a change of opinion as to whom they would vote for in November.

We don't want the roof to come tumbling down, but we wholeheartedly agree with Alabama Education Association executive secretary Paul Hubbert when own. Others have families who are he told some college deans that AEA wasn't to be blamed for imcompetent teachers in Alabama schools. The colleges are the ones who hand teachers that piece of paper, saying they are qualified to teach our children and the colleges should shoulder the responsibility for turning out quality teachers. We don't even like reports that a certain college or another had 91 or 92 percent of their students pass the teacher certification test . . . we feel a quality college wouldn't graduate a student if that student wasn't qualified to pass such a test!
